

1/2 A Texaco Glow Plugs

(SAM 1 EXHIBITS — David L Ramsey editor)

Printed in the Coastal Flyer, Newsletter of SAM 26, Bob Angel, Editor

At a meeting on January 18, 2006 Mike Fretz, one of the principles in the new Cox hobbies operation said that the current inventory of 1/2A Texaco glow plugs is totally depleted and currently there are no plans to make any more. Mike went on to say that the success of their new line of WWII RC electric models is so great they are giving serious consideration to totally moving away from the gas engine business. No decision has been made at this time but it is not looking like they are wanting to spend the time and money to restart any of the machines. A look at the Cox hobbies web site <http://www.coxmodels.com/> will show that they are selling off the inventory of 1/2A Texaco engines and a check at engine parts will show no glow plugs for these. Looks like SAM needs to be giving consideration to a rule change for this event.
